Last chance to see... Breathing Space: Contemporary Art from Hong Kong, Asia Society, Hong Kong

'I was fortunate enough to see this exhibition while I was in Hong Kong for our May auctions. I loved Cheuk Wing Nam's installation, Avarita — Silent Greed (2015). You first enter a dark room full of ringing chimes. It makes you feel overwhelmed and slightly anxious, as you might while walking through Hong Kong's bustling commercial districts. As your senses adapt, the darkness begins to feel calming, and the ringing fades to a melodic humming.' Until 13 August.
